“ Betty Hilgedick was my Aunt. Better known to us as "Aunt Bea". That's where my middle name came from. She was a wonderful woman. She traveled the world, loved to shop, truly loved to read. She shared her love of these things with all her friends and family. When I began having children, Aunt Bea would always send them Books for Christmas. We looked forward to seeing what wonderful books she would send. Some where just story books, but others where fold out books with entire cities contained inside. To this day my children, now 26, 24 & 21 still have those books. They have shared them with my younger children, now 9, 6 & 5, and will continue to share them with their children to come. I loved my Aunt Bea very much, I will treasure every memory and pass them down through my family so she will continue to live on. There will never be another like her. I miss her smile and laughter.
