“ I am so saddened to hear about Tim's passing. I knew Tim back in the late 70's and early 80's. Tim and his good friend Tim Beistle, my brother Mark and myself used to play boxing and baseball games down in Tim Beistle's basement, and those times were some of the most carefree and enjoyable times in my life. I hope they were good times for Tim too.

From the time I spent with Tim, I could tell he was a wonderful guy with a good, solid heart. He always made you feel like he really cared about you.

In this past year, my brother and I had met up with Tim once more after more than 20 some years apart. We spent a couple afternoons with Tim and played a few games and it was great seeing him again. I'm sorry I lost touch with him once more because of my own health problems and other things, and now wish I was a better friend to Tim. He deserved good friends, and I'm happy that he and Tim Beistle have remained friends all these years.

It's good to know Tim is with Jesus now and free from his bindings at last. It really gives me the once touch of peace knowing this. God bless Tim.

“ I only learned of Tim's passing moments ago, so the shock will make it difficult to transfer the feelings in my heart into coherent thoughts. I've known Tim for almost 35 years. While we were in high school together, he was one of only two fellow students who I considered a true friend. We spent evenings together after school on just about a daily basis, along with our friend Tim Beistle and my brother Greg. That time spent together are some of my favorite and most precious memories. Then life came along and led me away from this area and I lost contact with Tim for several years. I never forgot about him, though. It was just this past year that we reconnected and I was delighted to find that he had not changed one bit. He still had the heart of a boy...a quality that all men should possess. Tim was a good man and a good friend who, although he may have had reason, never complained or felt sorry for himself. I will miss him tremendously. God bless Tim and his family.
